Prof. Peck's Lecture.

A large audience collected at the Academy of Music last evening to hear Prof. Peck, Oberlin College, narrate his experience in the Kanawha Valley during a recent trip to that region. For some reason or other, undermine the constitution, leaving man out the to that region. For some reason or other, weath ut his terms well. The winter of this fetal the gas retused to shed light upon the occasion for upwards of an bour after the greate part of the listeners had arrived, and considerable amusigent was afforded, by cheer ing everything in the candle line, which was improvised for the occasion. Finally, the detect in the meter having been remedied, Prof. Peck appeared upon the stage and procooded to talk, as he himself expressed it, as he would to his neighbors, giving a plain and unvarnished account of his trip. He said that two reasons operated in taking him to Virginia: One was, that his associates on the banner Committee, desired him to be the hearer of it to the Seventh Regiments the other was that he had received a mossage from a young man in whom he felt greatly interested, who had been at Oberlin College, and who had been wounded severely in action, (and who afterwards died from his wounds,) wishing to know if he could be brought to Oberlin and there cared

During the journey, he received positive sformation at every station on the Kanawha that at the next landing place the nemy would be met, but in spite of such warnings they arrived safely at their destination. The appearance of going to war was very different from the return. In the one case the soldiers were fresh and inspired with what was before them; in the other, there were the awful results; the sick, wounded and dying. During the trip to Virginia everybody seemed good natured with few exceptions. He had met but two one being a drunken teamster, and the other an officer in the U. S. service at Columbus There were two classes of individuals to b met with along the Kanawha; the rich and the poor. There were here and there stately mansions to be seen, but everywhere were found miserable hovels, inhabited by equally niserable inhabitants. Above the Kanawha, the scenery is picturesque and exhigh and covered with close forests and undergrowth.

Everything in the way of supplies of provisions and forage is brought from the North at a great expense, as our Government is "Hazel Green," when they opened fire on and that the lots of land abutting the same opposed to taking anything without pay, the town and laid it in ashes. One young man from Trumbull county, had had some rather interesting experiences in this way. On one occasion, when sent off n duty, he was captured by the rebels; but s passed himself off as a secessionist on he way south to settle, having been driven it by Cox. He played the part so well out he was released and went on his misood fortune to meet there a pair of out and ut rebels, whose confidence he gained and om whom he learned the whole physical ography of the surrounding country and he plans of the enemy. On being called up s the morning, he took shelter under the cussion wings of his new friends, and was et free with them. The three rode away rom the camp, and at a cross road the federal scout put spurs to his horse, and before many hours was safe with his friends, to hospitals; also expressing the hope that the oldiers' Aid Society of this city would take ome measures to supply this want. There are at Charleston at the present time about 163 invalids; at Gallipolis 459, at Cincinna i at least 500, and probably 500 more at Parkeraburg and Grafton. Bickness and the camulties of battle have left some regiments with less than half the usual number .-There has been a terrible ascrifice of life and health in Western Virginia, and in a great measure this is due to the inefficiency of the Quartermaster's department, and not a little to the want of proper care in officers to keep their men and camps in a cleanly condition, As a general rule, the captain who is a father in the tents, is a man in the field. In this connection he would speak of Camp Wood, which he had visited during the day, He would venture to predict that that regiment (the 41st) would come out in better condition than almost any other in the field. This was owing to the superior military discipline which its commandant exercised terest, and we may venture to say that all who heard it came away with a far better realizing sense of the condition of our West. ern Virginia army than they have heretofore
